Rehnquist hearings begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate confirmation hearings for William H. Rehnquist as chief justice of the United States opened on a partisan note Tuesday with key Democrats charging that he harbors views too extremist for the job.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., one of the liberal senators expected to attack every phase of Rehnquist's career, said the question is whether the jurist is in the mainstream of the law or too remote.

Kennedy said Rehnquist "does not measure up" to the job because of his "virtually unblemished record of opposition to civil rights in cases involving minorities, women, children, the poor." He noted that in 54 cases decided on these merits, Rehnquist was a lone dissenter.

By his own record of massive isolated dissent, Justice Rehnquist answers that question — he is too extreme on race, too remote on women's rights, too extreme on freedom of speech, extreme on separation of church and state, too extreme to be just, said Kennedy.

Rehnquist, 61, now one of eight associate justices, was to appear as the leadoff witness as the Senate Judiciary Committee held hearings on his nomination. However, the initial appearance of the ultra-conservative jurist was to be only a prelude to a long hours of questioning expected Wednesday.

Palmer said the theme is significant because "all the attributes one could bring to a job, perhaps the most critical is that mysterious quality of leadership."

In this regard, Justice Rehnquist's record is outstanding. Justice Rehnquist has experience with almost every aspect of the American judicial system.

"It is difficult to imagine a background which would result in a more complete understanding and thorough knowledge of the court," Thurmond said.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, defended Rehnquist and said he "has proven a match for the awesome trust placed in him by the presidency, the Senate and the people of the United States."

Hatch said many of the criticisms of Rehnquist are outdated, going back to his Supreme Court clerkship in the early 1950's; days when "the hula hoop was still a decade from its heyday" and "Bonanza and the Mouseketeer Club would not appear for many years."

He said Rehnquist was "remarkably prepared" for his nomination as an associate justice in 1971 and is just as qualified today to become chief justice.

Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, was critical of Rehnquist, saying he holds views that are "so extreme that they are outside the mainstream of American thought and jurisprudence."

Metzenbaum said there is a "clear pattern" in Rehnquist's decisions.

"If the issue involves individual civil liberties, the individual is likely to lose. If the issue involves a criminal defendant's rights, the defendant's claim is likely to be denied. But if the issue is whether big government is going to get its way, the result is likely to be that it will."

Since President Reagan nominated him to replace retiring Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, controversy has swirled around Rehnquist's career.

The Provo Canyon sparks controversy once again as debate continues over the improvement of the existing Provo Canyon Road (U.S. 189).

Citizens for a Safe Community said Tuesday they will file a lawsuit, along with the Provo City School Board, against the Federal Highway Administration within the next ten days. The lawsuit is in response to the groups' opposition to the Utah Department of Transportation's plan for a four-lane road through Provo Canyon.

UDOT's plan was approved Monday by Governor Bangertor who said after reviewing the plan, he determined it was in the people's best interest to go ahead with it.

"The plan will enhance and improve the accessibility and scenic beauty of Provo Canyon," he said.

The citizen's group, spearheaded by BYU professor David B. Magleby disagrees. UDOT's design for the road is a two-lane road with two continual passing lanes on either side.

"UDOT is playing a numbers game. Calling it a two-lane with continual passing is false. It is a four-lane road," says Magleby.

"This canyon can not withstand a four-lane road. It would jeopardize air quality, road safety, and the safety of school children of Provo and Orem. Deforestation of the canyon would occur."

Over 950 semitrucks use Provo

Canyon Road each day. Magleby maintains that the UDOT plan would cause an increase in truck volume, thereby increasing air pollution, traffic accidents and water pollution.

UDOT's Skip Anderson said 10 percent of canyon traffic is semitrucks and that the amount of truck traffic would not increase. No studies have been done to determine whether or not an increase would occur.

Anderson said that the lawsuit would only delay much-needed realignment of the canyon road.

Provo Mayor Joe Jenkins said UDOT must award bids by October 1 or they will lose federal funding. UDOT told Jenkins a two-lane road with occasional passing does not meet federal standards and federal funds would be withheld. Jenkins said there would be a two-year delay as the process would have to begin all over again. Anderson confirmed that.

Magleby said he is frustrated by local leadership, particularly Jenkins. "They haven't had courage to express to the governor why this plan is a threat to their community," he said.

Jenkins doesn't believe the new road would be a threat. "We wanted to make sure the governor takes all the safety concerns into consideration. I had four concerns about the plan and all concerns were met except one."

Jenkins wanted left-hand turnouts up and down Provo Canyon Road. He also wanted to get overweight and oversized trucks off the road and a speed limit not to exceed 50 mph. His last concern was to have barriers between the opposite lanes.

Jenkins said the State Transportation Commission agreed to all suggestions except the barriers.

Safety is also a major concern of the citizens group. They favor realignment of the road to remove the sharpest curves but say this can be accomplished without a four-lane road.

Second fatal car bomb explodes in west Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded with terrific effect in the Moslem west Beirut Tuesday. It killed 25 people and wounded 170, police said, as a mass funeral was being held for victims of an even deadlier car bomb in the Christian sector.

No one claimed responsibility for either explosion.

On Monday, the detonation of a white Mercedes-Benz sedan packed with a quarter-ton of explosives killed 32 people and wounded 140 in east Beirut's El Dahr residential district.

At 11 a.m. on Tuesday, a gray Volkswagen Golf laden with 165 pounds of explosives, the charge bolstered by mortar rounds to intensify the force of the blast, erupted 20 yards from Barbir Hospital.

The Barbir area, which takes its name from the 220-bed hospital, was jammed with vegetable vendors, taxicabs and pedestrians.

The blast hurled bodies into the air and devastated 20 shops on the ground floor of a 13-story business building, in front of which the car bomb was parked. The building's first three floors were reduced to a shell.

More than 30 cars were set ablaze. Broken glass and twisted metal littered the street, which were awash with water from fire engine hoses.

Smoke billowed from burning stores and cars. Barbir Hospital, 300 yards west of the Green Line that divides the capital into sectarian halves, had been hit frequently in shelling duels between Moslem and Christian militia gunners during Lebanon's 11-year-old civil war. People inside the hospital at first thought it was being shelled again.

Syrian and Lebanese troops and Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen quickly cordoned off the site, firing submachine guns into the air to clear a path for ambulances and fire engines.

The Syrians have an estimated 500 soldiers in west Beirut, helping the Lebanese army enforce a month-old security plan aimed at ending the chaotic reign of feuding militias.

The two car bomb explosions in two days raised fears of retaliatory attacks like the three car bomb blasts within four days that rocked Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors in August 1985, killing 66 people and wounding 301.

At the time of the Barbir car bomb explosion, the 32 victims of Ein Rumanneh were being buried in a mass grave at an east Beirut cemetery.

The Voice of the Mountain radio station of Druse chief Walid Jumblatt accused the Lebanese army's Christian-offered intelligence department of engineering the Barbir bombing. But it cited no evidence to back up the charge.

Barbir Hospital, Makassed Moslem Hospital and the medical center of the American University of Beirut appealed urgently for blood donors.

BYU Education Week coming soon

ROGER H. COOK
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU campus will come alive once again, Aug. 2, when more than 20,000 students and instructors part in what has become the nation's largest single continuing education event — Campus Education Week.

Beginning in 1922 as leadership training for people in the near BYU, Education Week now serves people from all over the nation and from several foreign countries, said E. Mack Palmer, coordinator of the event.

"We're all striving to become a mighty oak," he said, "bringing to this year's theme, 'Education: The Process of Learning.' Palmer said the theme is significant because anyone at Education Week is striving to become better one way or another.

This year there is a special emphasis on genealogy. But in Alured, Education Week coordinator, said more than 1,100 courses will be available. "In the past, people didn't know what Education Week was exactly," said Palmer. "They thought perhaps it was simply full of religious courses and that's not true at all. Only 20 percent of classes offered are about religious subjects."

Just glancing at one of the Free Education Week catalogues, one can see such subjects as contemporary couple dancing, creative picture framing, gardening, etiquette, healthy lifestyles, computers, sewing, finances, political science, literature, marriage and the delicious art of cooking french cuisine, among others.

The special section on genealogy will feature more than 180 classes providing information and challenges for experts as well as novices. They will include basic and advanced methods in genealogical research in the United States and foreign countries.

Experts will also be teaching specific courses including sessions in what kinds of records are available to the researcher and how to gain access to them, using early LDS records and the LDS Church's genealogical library and its branches, along with classes providing a hands-on opportunity with personal computers.

A series of classes dealing with problems in management, leadership and professional development has also been scheduled this year. Presentations on stress, time management, leadership skills, financial planning and labor/management relations are just a few on the agenda.

Palmer said part-time jobs will be available to students during the five-day event. "We'll be hiring 50-60 people to help with everything from driving shuttle vans to spending time in one of the many information booths that will be located at various places on campus," he said.

Reagan glad of steps toward arms control

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Tuesday that for the first time, U.S.-Soviet arms control talks are "pointed in the right direction" and beginning to move toward the reduction and eventual elimination of nuclear weapons.

Both sides have also begun the serious planning for a second summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev; something the administration has been seeking, the president said.

No date for the summit has been announced, but State Department officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the Soviets are expected to send Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to Washington in September to make final preparations for a summit session.

Shevardnadze has been planning to make a trip to the United States at that time to address the U.N. General Assembly.

An announcement of the Soviet official's meeting with Secretary of State George P. Shultz is expected this week. The United States has been pressing the Soviets to make this commitment.

Reagan coupled his upbeat appraisal with a fierce declaration that he will not abandon his "Star Wars" missile defense plan, which is strenuously opposed by the Soviet Union.

The president said Star Wars, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative, must remain on schedule. He said congressional attempts to cut its funding undermine prospects for progress in arms reduction.

Speaking before a group of young people, Reagan noted he sent a letter to Gorbachev last Friday in response to a new Kremlin arms plan on June 23.

"I am hopeful we have reached a stage where mutual understanding or suspicion in themselves will no longer keep us from our goal; each side has a candid, realistic view of the other's positions and intentions," Reagan said.

Finding a job challenges students

By KIM SNELSON
Universe Staff Writer

Whether you are graduating and going into the "real world," or just looking for something for the semester, finding a job can be a real challenge.

According to Dan Bates, Supervisor of Placement at Job Service in Provo, there are things you can do to enhance your chances of getting a job.

The most obvious, but often overlooked item, is to dress appropriately. This includes clean fingernails, pressed clothing and neat hair.

Work attitude is also an important factor. "You need to plan to be dependable, hard-working and energetic," said Bates. A key is enthusiasm.

Darlene Kelly, student employment manager at BYU, often has positive employers tell her they wish students would be more enthusiastic and act like they wanted the job.

"Enthusiasm is very important," Kelly said.

According to Bates, interpersonal skills are of top importance when looking for a job.

"Most people lose jobs because of poor interpersonal skills," says Bates. "Employers want people that can communicate clearly and get along with other people. They also need to be able to write clearly."

Education or training was another factor mentioned by Bates. "Prepare yourself to be the best at whatever you do. Learn everything you can about the job you're doing. If you are the best, you'll never have a problem finding a job," says Bates.

Both Bates and Kelly stressed that the student has to be flexible and accommodate the employer.

"Some employers won't hire students because they want to change their work schedule to accommodate their school schedule or they want adjustments or time off for Christmas," says Bates. Students need to realize that the business must still function even if school is not in session.

Kelly pointed out, "By and large, we get a positive response from the community. Disneyland came and interviewed this year because they like the wholesomelessness of the students. The language aspect (so many students are fluent in another language) is a big plus."

Right now student employment is receiving over 20 calls each day for job referrals off-campus, said Kelly.

School district tax rate stays put

By SHEILA SMITH
Universe Staff Writer

Provo property owners will not have to pay a higher school tax rate under the 1986-87 school budget passed by the Provo School District Tuesday.

The school district left the tax rate, or mill levy, at 44.90 mills, the same as last years levy. Owners will pay an increase tax rate only if the county assessor appraises the land value higher than last year.

Two years ago the school board promised Provo citizens not to raise the mill rate for five years said School Board President Ronald D. Bingham. And now for the third year it has not raised the rate.

Board member Clarence F. Robinson said, "Our intent was that no taxpayer would pay more taxes and that is pretty much what has been accom-

Since the overall value of land in Provo has increased, the school district reported it will increase its property tax revenue by 1.2 percent. The increase revenue will be from taxes on property improvements and not due to a higher tax rate.

The 1.2 percent revenue increase is exclusive of new growth. New growth is those areas previously undeveloped and not just improvements on existing properties.

According to Sherron H. Porter, Provo School Board Clerk and Treasurer, the state tax commission has questioned the excluding of taxing new growth properties. If the state alters the budget to include new growth property taxes the property tax revenue increase will be 3.87 percent.

Other items discussed by the school board were a partnership program between Brigham Young University and Provo schools, resolution for membership in the Utah Public Education Finance Cooperative, grants received for the 1984-85 school year, summer activities and approval of June bills, and budget and job changes.

The partnership program was formed in 1984 between BYU and area school districts to increase the quality of education through better teacher and administrator preparation. The five school districts involved are: Alpine, Jordan, Nebo, Provo and Wasatch.

The membership in the Utah Public Education Finance Cooperative will not cost the school district any fees but will allow for an outlet to borrow money if necessary in the future.

Grants raised for the 1986-87 school year will total a little over $400,000.

School administrators and teachers have been busy this summer with workshops and in-service meetings to improve and learn skills.

Orem city council defeats proposed student housing

The proposed development for student housing in the vicinity of 1200 S. 600 West, across from Utah Technical College, was voted down by members of the Orem City Council at Tuesday night's meeting.

Reasoning of the area for student housing met with opposition from residents already established in the area. "My neighbors and I feel that this development would decrease property values and would increase the traffic and noise," said Keith B. Smith of 1225 S. 400 West, Orem.

Members on the council questioned the need for more student housing. "Other developers who have built facilities for student housing said there was a great need for them and assured us that only students would live in the apartments," said Mayor S. Blaine Willes.

Orem is now seeing advertising from these same developers asking for renters with no regard as to whether they are students or non-students, Willes said.

However, the council did approve the execution of a lease agreement between the City of Orem and the State of Utah for a new Circuit Court building which will be built directly east of the Orem City Center.

USX plagued by losses, strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — USX Corp. reported a $42-million profit for the second quarter Tuesday, but a $142-million second-quarter loss in steel operations threatened by a steel workers' strike at midnight Thursday.

USX, formerly United States Steel Corp., said its second-quarter profit, which represents a loss of 3 cents per common share after preferred dividends, came on sales of $4.2 billion. In the same period of 1985, the company posted a second-quarter profit of $140 million, or 61 cents per common share, on sales of $5.4 billion.

"Second-quarter results reflect the precipitous decline in crude oil and natural gas prices and continued lackluster demand and depressed prices for steel," Chairman David M. Roderick said.

For the first half, USX reported a $235 million loss on sales of $8.8 billion, down from a $365 million profit on sales of $10.4 billion during the first half of 1985.

The company's USS steel division reported its second-quarter loss despite sales of $1.4 billion. In the second quarter of 1985, USS's steel operations posted an $85 million profit on sales of $1.8 billion, according to the company.

USX said second-quarter steel shipments were off 12 percent and selling prices were off seven percent, primarily due to "significantly reduced demand" for tubular and other heavy products used in the oil and gas industry.

USX is facing a threatened strike by about 45,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America union at midnight Thursday if current negotiations in Pittsburgh fail to reach a new contract.

Roderick said, "The damage to USS and its union workers would be far-reaching and long-term."

"Our steel and domestic iron unit incurred an operating loss, even before financial costs, and the outlook for the remainder of 1986 is not encouraging, given a weak order book and few signs of improvement in the capital goods sector," Roderick said.

"A strike by our union will clearly result in a costly defection of customers — a condition not easily reversed — which will be felt both by the company and our employees," Roderick said.

Roderick urged "all parties, especially plant employees, to negotiate a meaningful agreement which provides us competitive conditions relative to our main competitors who now have the advantage of more realistic wages for their union employees."

Volcker says trade deficit will cause U.S. recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said Tuesday that a soaring trade deficit has put the United States in a "difficult and dangerous situation" and could, if not corrected, topple the country into a recession.

The chairman of the central bank told the House Banking Committee that he is not now forecasting the start of another recession. But he said the trade deficit, which hit a record $148.5 billion last year, is one of the main problems that needs to be dealt with to keep the 3½-year economic expansion alive.

Volcker repeated a plea he made last week before the Senate Banking Committee for America's major trading partners in Japan and Western Europe to do more to stimulate their growth rates in order to expand markets for U.S. products and thus narrow the trade imbalance.

"We live in a much more complex world than even a few years ago," Volcker said. "Our economic fortunes are to considerable extent dependent on the strength of growth abroad."

Volcker said the trade deficit has pushed the country's overall deficit held by foreigners up at a rapid pace as dollars to pay for imported goods flowed into the hands of foreign investors.

NEWS DIGEST

Captors give Jenco note for Pope

ROME (AP) — The Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, wearing a "Free the Hostages" pin on his lapel, said Tuesday he was given a message for Pope John Paul II by the Shiite Moslem extremists who held him captive for nearly 19 months.

Jenco, who was released last Saturday, was flown here in a U.S. Air Force jet from Frankfurt, West Germany, with 12 members of his family.

Reporters at Ciampino Airport asked whether the Roman Catholic priest, 51, would speak to the pope about the three other Americans held with him in Lebanon.

"I am sure that is one of the items I will speak to him about," he said. "Before I left Lebanon . . . my captors asked me to speak to him." Jenco, who has a history of heart problems, appeared weary and spoke in a soft voice.

He added that it would be up to the pope to decide whether to disclose the contents of the kidnappers' message. U.S. Embassy officials said the priest was to have a private audience with John Paul at noon today.

Utah visit pulls Irish youth together

SAULT LAKE CITY (AP) — It might have been any gathering of boisterous teenagers — except for the abundance of green T-shirts and Irish accents as 12 youths from Northern Ireland said good-bye to their Utah hosts after a month-long visit.

The Ulster Project-Utah ended with a farewell dinner and religious service at St. Ambrose Catholic Church. The teens — six Protestant, six Catholic — and their two adult counselors, departed Tuesday.

The actual impact of the project, designed to foster understanding between Protestant and Catholic youths in violence-torn Northern Ireland, will not be known for months or perhaps even years, the project's sponsors say.

But the Utahns who organized the project this year and raised more than $11,000 to bring the teens here already are looking for contributors and host families for a second project next summer.

Howe unsuccessful in South Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha said Tuesday his government would prefer economic sanctions to "national suicide" and rejected a plea by Britain's foreign secretary for the unconditional release of Nelson Mandela.

At the end of Sir Geoffrey Howe's one-week peace mission to southern Africa, Botha said Mandela would stay jailed and Mandela's African National Congress would stay outlawed until they renounced violence and purged the black guerrilla organization of what Botha said were communist leaders.

Howe said in a separate news conference, after a one-hour meeting with Botha, that peaceful dialogue was not possible unless Mandela and the ANC could participate freely.

"The responses I've received have not yet enabled me to proclaim that I have made the progress I would have liked," said Howe.

His mission, on behalf of the 12-nation European Common Market, included visits with black leaders of neighboring countries.

Diaper disposal causes a 'rash' of public ideas

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — The Kimberly-Clark Co. has received a rash of suggestions for disposing of defective diapers following reports that thousands of the throw-aways had gone up in smoke.

Ideas began to pour in this week following publication of an article in the Wall Street Journal about how hounds of discarded "Huggies" diapers were left in ashes after fire broke out in the Weber County landfill in June.

Suggestions have ranged from recycling the pads to marketing them as a fuel, to be burned intentionally.

"There's some real entrepreneurs out there, and their ideas were all really creative," Kimberly-Clark spokesman Mark McKeon said Tuesday.

86 pro football preview

EW YORK (AP) — In 1985, there were two Super Bowls — the Chicago Bears and everyone else. But that won't happen in 1986. While the Bears have to be considered favorites in their second Super Bowl, they begin the new season with two distinct problems and several lesser challenges. The problem is the Super Bowl jinx. No team has won the Super Bowl in the 1980s and only one — the 1982-83 Washington Redskins — has won in two Super Bowls. Another is upheaval — the Bears have already won more than they did in all of last year. Defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan, architect of the "46" defense, left to become the head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles. Two regulars, wide receiver Dennis Kinion and cornerback Leslie Frazier, suffered injuries last year that may keep them out of next season.

Giants "last year's Bears" The New York Giants, Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams in the NFC; the Miami Dolphins, Los Angeles Raiders, Denver Broncos may be even the Cleveland Browns over in the AFC. The Giants, in fact, are viewed by some ball people as "last year's Bears." It is a season that opens Sept. 7 is crucial for the Giants, which must negotiate new television and contract after it ends. Both may be difficult. ing testing is also expected to be a sticky point. The NFL may be hard put to match the $1 billion over five years it obtained in the 1982 contract.

pen on the field. What happened on the field last year was the Bears. They were 15-1 in the regular season, shut out the Giants and Rams in the playoffs, then crushed the New England Patriots 46-10 in a Super Bowl that was over in the second quarter.

Then the trouble started. Ryan left and took three of his defensive assistants with him. Coach Mike Ditka said, in effect, good riddance and announced that Ryan's "46" would be scrapped for a more mundane 3-4 defense, meaning time will have to be devoted to learning a new system.

Chicago's 1986 schedule weak Still, Chicago must still be considered a favorite. The team has a schedule weak enough to walk into the playoffs — only two teams that were over .500 last year.

And Vince Tobin, who came over from Baltimore of the USFL to replace Ryan, is considered a top-notch defensive coordinator willing to innovate. Watch, for example, for William "Refrigerator" Perry at linebacker occasionally.

Also watch the Giants, who but for key mistakes at the wrong time might have been 14-2 last season instead of 10-6.

They have augmented a defense second only to Chicago's with six defensive players taken in the first three rounds of the draft. In fact, even if perennial All-Pro Lawrence Taylor isn't his old self after a session in a drug rehabilitation clinic, the Giants are still dominant.

The offense could use another speedy wide receiver for quarterback Phil Simms, but Joe Morris and second-year backs George Adams and Lee Rousey give New York the best running attack in the league.

New York's toughest challenges may come from within the NFL East.

Bears favored in NFC Central The Bears should win the NFC Central by default and the Rams should be favored in the West, although either Dieter Brock or Steve Bartkowski must come through at quarterback if Los Angeles is to have Super Bowl potential. The San Francisco 49ers, the champs two years ago, have been decimated by age and injury, particularly in the secondary, while Atlanta and New Orleans are rebuilding.

The league's salary cap was raised, Monday from last year's level of $4.233 million to $4.945 million. Until the salary cap was raised, the Jazz were unable to offer tender an offer sheet to Erving, but they may do so now.

However, team spokesman Bill Kriefeld said earlier that Erving is too valuable to let go outright, and if the 76ers do not want to match the offer they probably would ask for compensation from Utah.

"I think this way, let him talk it out and we can go from there," Utah Coach Frank Layden said. Miller said, "At this point, I feel more optimistic than I have at any time throughout the deal that we'll at least get him to sign an offer sheet."

building. Miami, whose defense was exposed by Cleveland and New England in the playoffs, hopes rookies like linebacker John Offerdahl and veterans like nose tackle Bob Baumhower, returning from injury, can rectify that problem. There are no such difficulties on offense, where a bad year for Dan Marino is still an All-Pro one.

New England, the AFC's surprise Super Bowl entrant, must recover from turmoil revolving around drug-related disclosures immediately after the Super Bowl. The New York Jets, another surprise last year, must shore up their offensive line and secondary to be Super Bowl contenders while Indianapolis and Buffalo will be happy just to contend for .500.

Cleveland won the Central by default at 8-8 last year and should be better, despite the drug-related death of safety Don Rogers.

Cincinnati, 7-9, should also improve although a defense that could stop anyone would be a help. Pittsburgh has an outstanding receiver tandem in John Stallworth and Louis Lipps but no quarterback to reliably throw them the ball.

AFC West The AFC West has been the toughest division in football the past two years and should be again. Denver, which has been on the verge, missed the playoffs last year despite an 11-5 record.

They picked up cornerback Mark Haynes from the Giants in the off-season to shore up a leaky cornerback spot and expect John Elway to finally become one of the game's top quarterbacks.

Quarterback is just the problem for the Raiders. Barring a trade, look for 38-year-old Jim Plunkett, coming off a shoulder injury — to win the job by default from Marc Wilson. Other than that, Los Angeles is solid.

Seattle and San Diego could also contend. The Seahawks' first-round pick, fullback John L. Williams, is the perfect complement to Curt Warner, although a comeback season by quarterback Dave Krieg would help.

Look for the same old 50-45 games in San Diego, where the Chargers have all the offensive weapons you could ask for — Dan Fouts, a rejuvenated Kellen Winslow, Gary Anderson, Lionel James and more. The defense, on the other hand, ...

However, the NBA also makes it easier for other teams to go after Utah's star. "We've got some exposure on that," Miller said. "But we need to see this thing (the Erving deal) through to its conclusion and go on from there."

Miller said three teams have given Utah free agent Darrell Griffith a physical or have seen him play. One of them was Philadelphia. "Griff want to play here," Miller said.

USFL awarded $3.00

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League was ordered to pay $3 in token damages Tuesday after being found nominally liable for an antitrust violation against the rival United States Football League. Although the USFL said it would appeal, the decision seemed certain to doom the eight-team league, which had sought $1.69 billion in its struggle to stay in business.

"We're lost now. We're dead," said Rudy Shiffer, vice president of marketing and public relations for the USFL Memphis Showboats.

USFL Commissioner Harry Usher said the four-year-old league's owners, who abandoned their spring-spring format after the 1985 season, would meet Aug. 6 in New York to decide whether to compete as planned against the NFL this fall. Other USFL officials had said earlier that they needed at least $300 million in damages to survive one more season.

The U.S. District Court jury of five women and one man, who deliberated for 31 hours over four days after an emotional 11-week trial, said the NFL used its monopoly power to damage the USFL and to gain control of the pro football market but that the USFL had damaged itself. It awarded actual damages of only $1, trebled to $3 in an antitrust case.

The NFL was cleared of monopolizing television, the key accusation in the case, and eight other charges.

USFL attorney Harvey Myerson claimed that the jury was deadlocked 3-3 on damages, with three of the jurors favoring substantial damages.

Miriam Sanchez, a schoolteacher who was the most adamant USFL juror, said she favored $200 million to $300 million for the younger league.

But Sanchez said none of the others favored an award that large and rather than risk a hung jury, the three jurors who favored any damages agreed to the $1 in hopes that Judge Peter K. Leisner might increase them.

"The $1 was a compromise," she said.

"Some compromise!" said NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"Justice is wonderful," crowed NFL lawyer Frank Rothman, who was sometimes criticized for his quiet demeanor in the face of the flamboyant tactics of his opponent, Harvey Myerson.

Archer shoots past top seeds

HOUSTON (AP) — When Darrell Pace and Rick McKinney, America's best archers, looked up at the scoreboard at the end of their event Tuesday, they saw something strange — neither of them had won the U.S. Olympic Festival gold medal.

Val Rosas, a three-time All-America from Buena Park, Calif., scored the biggest victory of his career by upsetting Pace, of Hamilton, Ohio, and McKinney, Gilbert, Ariz. Pace won the gold medal in the 1976 and '84 Olympics and McKinney is a seven-time national champion and 1983 and '85 world champion.

"This is by far the biggest win of my career," Rosas, 27, said. "I still think Darrell and Rick are the best archers in the world. I just happened to shoot very, very well today."

Rosas, who entered the final four rounds in fourth place, shot a perfect 60 for six arrows to start the 30-meter portion with 59 points. Rosas took third place after the 70-meter shooting and lost out of the field in the final round, from 90 meters, for the title.

Rosas had 224 points, four ahead of Pace and six in front of McKinney. It was the first time since 1979 that Pace and McKinney were not 1-2 in the Festival.

"It was strange not seeing my name and Darrell's in the 1-2 position in the scoreboard," McKinney said. "Val is one of the top guys now and we need to go after him. He is the new breed of archer."

Fishing transcends political borders

EAST WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — Fishermen are fishermen the world over, and the lies they tell are just as big everywhere, says the man who signed an agreement that opened the Soviet Union to U.S. sport fisherman and researchers.

Soviet fishermen share many of the same concerns as their American counterparts, C.C. "Red" Pittack said Monday. "They have concerns about acid rain, endangered species and runs being depleted by ocean interception."

Pittack, 64, is first vice president of Trout Unlimited, a non-profit fish conservation group with about 50,000 U.S. members.

The group has just signed an agreement with Rosotrybolovsyz, the Soviet society of hunters and fishermen, that will mean an exchange of fishery research and fishermen between the two countries, Pittack said.

Rosotrybolovsyz is a quasi-governmental organization that performs most of the functions of a state game and fish department for about two-thirds of the Soviet Union.

Pittack, Rocky Mountain Regional Vice President Steve Lundy and William Davies, president of the Mesa, Ariz., chapter, spent 15 days in Moscow and Leningrad, negotiating the agreement and doing very little fishing.

The trip was jointly sponsored by the Soviet organization and Trout Unlimited and had no official U.S. backing, Pittack said. A copy of the agreement was given to U.S. consulate officials in Moscow before the group returned to the United States on Sunday, he said.

The exchange agreement calls for consideration of a

"One dollar. I just paid the buck," Rothman said. "There was no case. The jury was very, very astute. They saw through a case built on nothing but smoke, and not very good smoke at that. The $1 is an insult to the USFL. It's what the jury thought about the lawsuit."

One of the jurors, Margaret Lilienfeld, said the jury agreed that while the NFL was a monopoly, the USFL was primarily responsible for the estimated $150 million in losses it sustained during three years of spring play.

"It was very difficult," she said. "We decided that there was a monopoly and that the NFL had tried to maintain it, but the USFL had damaged themselves."

"The USFL shot themselves in the foot," said NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who also was found personally not liable in the case. "I tried to explain during the trial that I viewed the NFL as a national monopoly, and if I understand the attorneys, they just viewed it that way, too."

Myerson said the USFL would appeal the verdict, and Usher said it was too soon to say what would happen to the league or its players, including such stars as former Heisman Trophy winners Herschel Walker and Doug Flutie, running back Kelvin Bryant and quarterback Jim Kelley.

The USFL season is scheduled to start Sept. 13, with the Arizona Outlaws at the Tampa Bay Bandits.

Steve Ehrhart, general manager of the Memphis Showboats, said the outlook was not good. "It looks shaky right now," he said.

"It's difficult to reconcile its finding that the NFL acted in a monopolistic, predatory fashion but that we weren't damaged except to the extent of $1," Usher said.

Myerson, the USFL attorney, said "They have given a monopolist who has been proven to be a monopolist a license to continue being a monopolist."

That the NFL would be the winner was evident early when the jury announced that it had expanded its definition of the TV market for football to include cable. The USFL, which had complained that the NFL had kept it from getting a contract for fall play with any of the three major networks, has a one-year, $8 million cable contract with ESPN for this fall, starting with the New Jersey Generals-Memphis Showboats game Sept. 14.

The South 'A' team, led by Jim Copeland, who won his second gold medal, captured the cycling team titles Tuesday morning.

Copeland won the 120-kilometer road race to win the first gold medal of the Festival.

John Albert Faldo of Charleston, W. Va., and Noelle Porter of San Clemente, Calif., the second seeds, won the mixed doubles in tennis, beating the No. 1 seeds, John Boyett of Spring, Texas, and Trisha Laux of Roswell, Ga., 6-3, 6-4.

Boyett was a winner in the men's doubles, teaming with Barry Richards, also of Spring, for a 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 win over Mike Bryan of Lafayette, La., and Mitch Michulka of Richardson, Texas.

In women's doubles, Betsy Somerville of Honolulu and Ginger Helgeson of Edina, Minn., scored a 6-3, 3-6, 7-5 decision over Porter and Mary Beth Young of La Habra, Calif., for the gold medal.

In softball, the South team remained unbeaten with their fifth straight victory, 7-1 over the North. Represented by the Decatur (Ill.) Pride, the South will face the North (Pay 'n Pak of Bellevue, Wash.) again in the finals on Wednesday.

There are also trophy-sized species of Atlantic salmon, Arctic char and a salmonoid called the Taimen, he said.

The talks scrupulously avoided the politics of commercial high-seas fisheries, focusing instead on sport fishing or fresh water fish that make sea runs, he said another visit planned for October will be devoted more to fishing and helping to advise on tourism facilities needed to attract the American angler.

The Americans took with them samples of U.S. tackle and fishing equipment, hoping to make inroads in a fishery that still uses cane poles. A number of U.S. tackle manufacturers sent along samples.

"They were impressed with our equipment," said Pittack, a fly fisherman. "We showed them a three-ounce graphite pole and told them we had caught fish over 20 pounds with it. They were skeptical at first. I guess they figured all fishermen lie. But when we bent the pole, they seemed to believe us."

Pittack said the group was able to fish on only two days, on the Volga River. The group's Soviet hosts appeared most interested in fly fishing, according to Pittack, who declined an offer to stay another 30 days to teach fly-tying techniques.

Bruno will fight again despite loss

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — A wise-cracking Frank Bruno, in his first public appearance since failing to win the world heavyweight title, announced Tuesday he is staying in boxing.

Then he scolded reports about retiring.

"The dream is still there. I am carrying on, and I still believe I can become champion of the world," he said. Bruno's right eye was badly bloodshot, a legacy from the 11 rounds of furious action with Witherpoon.

He said defeat hurt but that at no time did he consider giving up boxing.

"In my heart, I've still not recovered," Bruno said. "But mentally and physically I have. It was the last thing on my mind to quit. I'm too young."

He said the decision to carry on was his own.

"There's been pressure on me, mother wanted me to pack it in, she has wanted that since the day I took up boxing."

Asked what he had learned from the Witherpoon defeat, only his own loss in 30 fights, he quipped: "to come out for the 11th round."

Then, he added more seriously: "I've learned no more to try and every round, to try and beat a little and all that sort of thing."

Bruno said he would like to fight again for the world title in about a year's time and hoped to get back the heavyweight unification series, organized by promoter Don King.

'Brassworks' performs tonight

BYU's faculty ensemble, "Brassworks," will perform tonight at 8 at the Scera Shell in Orem. Tickets are available at the Scera Theatre, or they may be purchased at the door.

Faculty group to visit Scera Shell

The popular style of BYU's "Brassworks" will pay a visit to Orem's Scera Shell tonight at 8 when six faculty musicians present a collection of famous and well-known marches from throughout the world.

The performance will preview "Brassworks," guest performance with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir next month at Canada's Expo '86. "Brassworks" will perform a selection of Renaissance fanfares and dances, jazz and Dixieland medleys.

The group will also present a few surprises. "Selections will be old, new, borrowed and, of course, blew," said Newell Dayley, a member of "Brassworks."

The ensemble includes Dayley, Steve Call, Gaylen Hatton, Daniel Bachelder, Ron Brough and David Blackinton.

The performing group plays regularly on BYU's campus.

The performers also make regular appearances throughout Utah, especially during the summer months.

Recently, the group performed at the Utah Arts Festival in Salt Lake City, played this month at a Renaissance fair and even took their program on the maiden voyage of a hot air balloon.

Tickets for tonight's "Brassworks" performance are available at the Scera Theatre in Orem and at the door to the performance tonight.

Meat-and-potatoes' potato could provide new form of nourishment

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — If units can be pushed into making better use of a new gene, says its creator, a "meat-and-potatoes" potato could nourish people who now must urve.

"We're still a ways from having a potato like a steak."

"But it's certainly within the realm of possibility," says Dr. Jesse Jaynes, a Louisiana State University biologist who dreams of ending world hunger.

"This could have a profound impact developing nations," he said in an interview.

Today's potatoes are about 2 percent protein.

If the protein produced by his gene is up one-quarter of that 2 percent, he said, potatoes could provide all the protein a normal person needs. Genes direct the growth of every cell in every living thing.

Over the last 15 years, scientists have learned how to put their molecular building blocks together in new ways and to use viruses and bacteria as microscopic shot needles to carry the new genes into cells to become permanent residents.

Jaynes said he recently got the results of tests showing that his gene has become a permanent part of more than a dozen potato plants at LSU.

And although it's not making enough protein to matter, he said he thinks it can be made to do so by the early 1990s.

"In five years we'll be know whether or not it's attainable. I personally think it will be," he said.

It would be invaluable to poor countries where most people can't afford meat, eggs, milk or cheese, said Jaynes.

He is working with scientists at the International Potato Center in Lima, Peru, under a grant from the Agency for International Development.

"We'd like to say, 'Now it's a matter of fine-tuning,' but it isn't," said Jaynes.

"But I think we're more than halfway there to having a plant that's doing something — not necessarily monetarily, but valuable to the people."

He said it will be several months before scientists even know how much additional protein the new potatoes contain.

What is important, he said, is that they have successfully made the gene part of the potato.

Jaynes said the gene he put together — he doesn't know if it's been named — is extremely high in the five amino acids which are most needed by the human body and least common in vegetables.

"Proteins are made of 20 amino acids, just stuck one after the other like a train," he said.

"We can make 10 of the amino acids ourselves. Ten we can't, so we have to get those 10 from the foods we eat."

If he can get the gene producing a significant amount of protein, he said, the next step will be getting that protein concentrated in the potato itself.

At present, he said, it's spread throughout the plant.

Documentary claims 'you can't have it all'

NEW YORK (AP) — Who says you "have it all?"

Clearly everyone who appears in "After the Sexual Revolution," a three-hour documentary on C. News, seems to dispute that question which is endlessly posed that beer commercial.

Take Judy Dramer, for instance. She's 36, has a good career and is going forward to the birth of her child.

She's not married, however; the idea was conceived by artificial in-union.

She worries about having to explain her decision to her child some day.

"You can't have it all," she says. "No one can."

"After the Sexual Revolution," reported by the husband-wife team of Betsy Aaron and Richard Threlkeld with an assist from network anchor Peter Jennings, does a much better job of saying what has happened than what it happened.

The flurry of statistics scattered through the program shows that women have expanded their foothold in what was a man's world. Women now represent 18 percent of the lawyers, 17 percent of physicians and one-fourth of all MBAs, although they have barely cracked the highest levels of business.

A sign, surely, that maybe you can have it all?

That was the promise of the 1960s, but the reality is stark: Seventy percent of all working women are single, divorced, widowed or married to men making $15,000 a year or less.

Forty-seven percent of the single mothers live below the poverty line. Overall, the documentary notes, women are not better off economically than they were nearly 30 years ago.

"After the Sexual Revolution" is at its grimmest in talking about children, especially the children whose parents are divorced.

Child-support payments are often inadequate, even when the former husband pays, and single mothers may have to go to work and let the children fend for themselves part of the day.

Visiting professor will discuss Middle East

Visiting professor from Israel will discuss the Middle East conflict from Israel's point of view in an open house Thursday at 1 p.m.

Eathan Yanai of the University of Haifa will speak on "Peace in the Middle East: Israeli Perspectives," in the 11th Kennedy Center Conference Room (228 HRCB).

Yanai, who received his Ph.D. from Columbia University, is spending summer term at BYU teaching political science courses and conducting research. This lecture is the second of two this summer sponsored by the Kennedy Center for International Studies focusing on the Middle East conflict.

Nafez Nazal, a visiting professor from Birzeit University, outlined the conflict from a Palestinian's perspective July 17.

Bike registration affects BYU riders

Brian Andreasson, director of the University Police Traffic Division, said a new Provo City law lowering the cost of bicycle licenses will also affect BYU bikers.

Andreasson said the new law, which went into effect July 21, reduces the cost from $3 to $1. He said the reason for the change was to convince more people to register their bikes with local traffic authorities.

"A bike license makes it much easier for us to track down a bike once it has been lost or stolen," said Andreasson.

Provo City Police officer Lee Upchurch said he first noticed the need for the price reduction during a city bicycle rodeo in conjunction with BYU. He said not many people were purchasing the licenses because Provo was charging more than any other community in the area.

"I had never seen a written law that stated the license fee was $3, so I put in a motion to change the current asking price to a dollar," said Upchurch. But when he later found it actually was a city ordinance, he said he had to get the approval of the city council. The council passed the motion and changed the law.

All bicycle licenses, whether purchased from the city or BYU Traffic Division, are good for the life of the bike, but Traffic Division officers warn just because a student purchases a license, all bikes must still be parked in specified bicycle stalls on campus. Failure to do so could result in impoundment of the bike, said officers.

Insights to human nature

Feelings matter, says BYU prof

By STEVE BAUGHAN
Universe Staff Writer

The common question "How do you feel?" has deep, scientific significance, and its answers provide insights into human nature, said a BYU professor of psychology during Tuesday's Forum assembly.

How often, when asked for our feelings about why we did something, have we answered, "Because I felt like it," said Harold L. Miller.

In ordinary exchanges such a response usually suffices; it is accepted as a legitimate warrant for action. No further explanation or justification of our actions is required, he said.

According to Miller, there is a quality to feelings that can be certifying. When confusion grows intense, when quandary disquiets, we are prone to "go with the flow," with the inner flow of feeling and the authority and authenticity it can provide.

Miller said efforts to understand the sources of significant feelings (or emotions) have traditionally been centered in psychology. But psychology looks at the individual from many different angles, including the developmental, motivational, cognitive, social, behavioral and biological aspects of human nature. From these diverse areas, a single view of feelings is emerging.

"In this pluralism that is the person, feelings matter — perhaps more than you think," Miller said.

Miller pointed out that we as individuals ordinarily think of feelings as things that occur on the inside of us rather than the outside. Not that we don't express our feelings in various ways externally, but when we experience an emotion, whether it be in the gut, in the pit of the stomach, or in the heart, it is internal and therefore private.

According to Miller, although we can explain our feelings to each other, and we can observe each others' outward actions and thereby obtain information about one another, "Two layers of skin separate us" and our internal feelings.

It is important to note that the human potential for feelings does not automatically categorize all behavioral alternatives at birth, Miller said.

Much of the matching of objects in the environment to emotional categories is performed by the society into which one is born and occurs largely through the instrumentality of language.

Miller said people often fall into different categories of action and cause they retain some measure of independence.

For various reasons, there is likely to be times when their actions are inexplicable, unspeakable, or even unthinkable.
